

Adele returns with Adrian and Her husband, MARIO WONG, (mid 30's), a skinny, Chinese guy dressed like a 1950's lounge singer.

MARIO

Hey Tony, how's it hanging man.
Big daddy now, can you believe it?
Just wait, I'm telling you things are going to be different now. You better be ready.

They do the buddy hug.

TONY

Yeah, I know what you mean. So how are you doing?

MARIO

Ah you know me and the old lady, we got another audition tonight.

ADELE

(proud)
The Aqua Lounge.

TONY

You guys are really going to do this, huh?

ADELE

Yup.

TONY

Just give it all up to become lounge singers.

MARIO

We're not giving anything up. The company decided to buy out my contract. And remember, after we had Matt? I let that guy talk me into putting money into that fund even though we were struggling. Now it's doing great. We're good.

ADELE

Call it semi, pseudo-retirement.

TONY

But, why?

MARIO

When you get a chance to follow your dreams. Why not?

ADELE

Besides, I'm tired of going to karaoke bars and entertaining for free. I think the two of us are good enough to be professionals and we should be paid.

TONY

I'll still be able to get products right?

MARIO

You have a contract with the company, so it's all good.

TONY

Cool. -- Man, I can't believe this all started from that stupid karaoke machine Shelby bought.

ADELE

Yeah, I guess if we get the gig we have to thank Shelby. You guys still have that thing?

TONY

Yeah, it's someplace. I think.

MARIO

Honey, baby, sweetie, my dearest love. We need to get going.-- What did you want ask me?

TONY

If I were to buy a house...

SHELBY

Tony, this isn't a joke is it?

TONY

Can I finish, please. Just let me finish. If I were to buy a house would the two of you be willing to help us move?

SHELBY

Are you serious? Please, tell me you're not kidding.

MARIO

Tony, how far do we go back? You don't even have to ask. Of course.

TONY

Neighbor is a loan officer. Said he could hook me up.

SHELBY

I think I love you again, Tony.

TONY

Whatever. So it's good?

MARIO

Yeah, sure. Doll face, we really need to get going.

ADELE

Okay.

MARIO

Just let us know the day of the big move and we'll be here bright and early, okay?